Opening in May 2026

At The Channel, we believe that wine is the world's most eloquent traveller. Every bottle that passes through here has made a journey and arrives at the edge of the Atlantic, ready to tell its story.

We are the passage through which those stories reach you.

We are a wine bar rooted in a town that has always known how to navigate between the intimate and the expansive, the local and the global, the rugged and the refined. The Channel is where Liverpool gathers, not to be impressed, but to be delighted. We curate with intention, pour with generosity, and create a room where conversation flows as freely as the wine. We take what we do seriously, and ourselves only lightly.

We are here for the curious, the convivial, and the quietly adventurous, for anyone who has ever looked at a glass and wondered where it came from, what it tastes like, and who they might share it with.

The Channel is that place: a harbour for the well-chosen, a current of good company, and a reminder that the best journeys often begin with a single, well-chosen pour and this is exactly where to begin.
